NEW METHODS OF CELL PHYSIOLOGY

Applied to Cancer, Photosynthesis, and Mechanism of X-Ray Action

(Developed 1945-1961)

By OTTO WARBURG

Director, Max Planck Institutes for Cell Physiology, Berlin

Recent advances in cell physiology (since 1948) have resulted in many cases from the extension of methods and techniques first described in publications from the Max Planck Institute. These papers, and 20 others completed in 1961 and never before published, are collected in this book. The purpose of this presentation is to speed the introduction of new techniques in cell physiology, and to enable a larger group of researchers to collaborate in the solution of the problems now commanding such a high degree of attention. First, there is a principal problem of medical research today—the origin of cancer. Then, there is a more general yet very important subject—the transformation of light energy into chemical energy in the living world. NOTE: About three-quarters of this work is printed in German.
