COVER LEGEND

The American Association for Cancer Research has had an official periodical since 1916, with the first issue of the Journal of Cancer Research. In 1931, it was replaced by the American Journal of Cancer, which started as Volume 15 and terminated in 1940 with Volume 40. Cancer Research appeared in 1941. Thus, 1966 marks the beginning of the second half-century of publication. The annual Proceedings of the Association, recording abstracts and minutes of its meetings, was introduced in 1953.
